

Book Sanctuary | PHOTOS

capitalgazette.com/2024/09/25/book-sanctuary-photos

Jeffrey Bill

September 25, 2024

The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. On display are some of the titles that have been targeted. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary Wednesday, the first of its kind in Maryland.

AACPL CEO Skip Auld, opens the news conference with a few words regarding book banning. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Delegate Dana Jones, who authored and sponsored the Freedom to Read Act, makes her remarks about banned books. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Delegate Dana Jones, who authored and sponsored the Freedom to Read Act, makes her remarks about banned books. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Anne Arundel County Executive Stuart Pittman, makes his remarks before presenting an Executive Proclamation making Anne Arundel County a Book Sanctuary. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Anne Arundel County Executive Stuart Pittman, makes his remarks before presenting an Executive Proclamation making Anne Arundel County a Book Sanctuary. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Anne Arundel County Executive Stuart Pittman, makes his remarks before presenting an Executive Proclamation making Anne Arundel County a Book Sanctuary. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Anne Arundel County Executive Stuart Pittman, presents an Executive Proclamation making Anne Arundel County a Book Sanctuary to AACPL CEO Skip Auld. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Anne Arundel County Public Library CEO, Skip Auld, holds up two books that have faced book banning scrutiny; "To Kill A Mockingbird" and "The Hate U Give." The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Annapolis Mayor Gavin Buckley, makes his remarks before presenting an Annapolis City Proclamation making Annapolis a Book Sanctuary. Standing to his right is Katie Connolly, Annapolis Pride Board Vice Chair. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland.

(Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Annapolis Mayor Gavin Buckley, makes his remarks before presenting an Annapolis City Proclamation making Annapolis a Book Sanctuary. Standing to his right is Katie Connolly, Annapolis Pride Board Vice Chair. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Annapolis Mayor Gavin Buckley, presents an Annapolis City Proclamation making Annapolis a Book Sanctuary to AACPL CEO Skip Auld. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

State Librarian Morgan Miller makes her remarks regarding the dangers of book banning. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

State Librarian Morgan Miller steps from behind the podium to show off her shirt.. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland.
(Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Hoboken, New Jersey, Public Library Director Jennie Pu, makes her remarks regarding the "Book Sanctuary Movement" happening all over the country. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

State Librarian Morgan Miller reads "Grandad's Camper" during the library's story time. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

State Librarian Morgan Miller reads "Grandad's Camper" during the library's story time. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Hoboken, New Jersey, Public Library Director Jennie Pu reads "Grandad's Camper" during the library's story time. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

Hoboken, New Jersey, Public Library Director Jennie Pu reads "Grandad's Camper" during the library's story time. The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. On display are some of the titles that have been targeted. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. On display are some of the titles that have been targeted. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. On display are some of the titles that have been targeted. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. On display are some of the titles that have been targeted. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

The Anne Arundel County Public Library, AACPL, and local officials announced the system's official designation as a Book Sanctuary, the first of its kind in Maryland. On display are some of the titles that have been targeted. (Jeffrey F. Bill/Staff photo)

