Annapolis proud

June 29 was a great day to be in Annapolis. The streets were full of joy and happiness. Thousands of people, gay and straight, young and old, black and white were celebrating uniquely American values: liberty and justice for all.

The Annapolis Pride Parade and Festival was a huge success. Thanks to Jeremy Browning and Claire Drapeau, Annapolis Pride and all of their many volunteers, Mayor Gavin Buckley and the City, and the many churches, businesses, and organizations sponsored or lent their support.

This is what it looks like when a community comes together to celebrate positive values. We live in a great place. Heartfelt thanks to everyone who made this happen and who works to make our community a welcoming place for all.
